NAME IDENTIFICATION

Due to a shortage of space in our calendar we are publishing this supplement for those who wish to identify students or staff in the pictures shown.

We here again cannot assume responsibility for errors or omissions, as well as dates or places. We have relied on the memories of living graduates as well as notes and names we were fortunate enough to find on a number of the old photos.

Our pictures were obtained by donations to our museum and by making copies of photos brought in for us to see.

--SCHOOL TEACHER FACTORY--

GHHS Negative # 2015 Courtesy of Iris Kendall

Shown is the homestead of Tobias and Lydia Miller, on Sardine Creek, built in 1874. Their daughter, Eva, married William Newton in that year. They later occupied the home in 1895, and for the remainder of their lives. They raised five daughters, Edith, Luella Belle, Nora, Bessie, and Mary, who all became school teachers in the valley. The basic part of the home still stands. The home was occupied for over 100 years by members of the family.

Article from Medford Mail Tribune

November 29, 1962 - by Mary Kell, Mail Tribune Correspondent

Gold Hill - Mrs. Nora Wait, well known Gold Hill woman, recalls some experiences as a teacher in this area during the early 1900 era. She recently celebrated her 75th birthday and in observance of the occasion some 55 friends attended a surprise party given for her at the Gold Hill Grange Hall.

Mrs. Wait holds the distinction of having taught school approximately 56 years ago at one of southern Oregon's early day schools, the Dardanelle, which was located in the historic area across the Rogue River from the city of Gold Hill.

At the time she said it was strictly a farming community. Her pupils walked several miles to school each day, morning and evening, she noted. There were no school buses in those days, and she drove a single-horse and buggy from the family home on Sardine Creek each day to her classes, somewhat different than the transportation that is available to present day teachers.

About 25 pupils attended school in the one-room building. Classes included first through eighth grade, she said. School hours she recalled were similar to the ones the present day student are familiar. Her salary was about $30 or $35 per month she said.

The Dardanelle School building was located in a field on the opposite side of Old Stage Road from the former farm house, now the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 7416 meeting place. This school building was destroyed by fire a short time after she taught there. After that time the pupils who would have attended Dardanelle attended school at the building which is now known as the old city hall, in Gold Hill.

Mrs. Wait also taught school at the original school building, a one room, eight class system from 1907 until 1909. Her first school teaching was at Trail Creek.

Mrs. Wait herself attended school at the historic Rock Point school, which burned a few years ago. She has in her possession a booklet, more than 60 years old now, that was given to her by one of her teachers at Rock Point. Among teachers she recalls at Rock Point was Martina Thiele, her last prior to the time she entered school in Gold Hill.

She noted a Corta Masterson as being one of her teachers at Gold Hill, where she completed the tenth grade and received her training to become a teacher. At that time grades 11 and 12 were not taught here, she said, as they are in today's high schools.

After completing the 10th grade to qualify for a teacher, she went to Jacksonville where she took her written tests at the old historic court house, then was presented her teacher's certificate, and commenced her teaching at the age of 18 years.

She quit teaching about 1916 and went to Portland where she went to work as a bookkeeper. After her marriage to the late Perry Wait in 1921 she returned to Sardine Creek and to reside in this area, where she has been active in Grange work, joining the Live Oak Grange in 1924 and the Gold Hill Grange, of which she is a charter member, in 1941.

A former secretary of Gold Hill Grange, she is now chaplain, a position she has held for several years. She is a member of Gold Hill Community Methodist church where she has taught Sunday school and is an active member of both the woman's society of the church, and the Gold Hill Health unit.

Mrs. Wait resides with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Andreu, at the early day family home of the two sisters, the old Newton place. Their parents were pioneer settlers, William H. And Eva Newton. William Newton, father of Mrs. Wait and Mrs. Andreu, worked with the surveying crew for the railroad during the 1800 era.

The surprise party for Mrs. Wait was given in the form of an open house. Decorated cakes were made for the affair by Mrs. Earl Moore, Mrs. A. Walker, Mrs. Wilbur Martin, Mrs. Letha Jones, and Mrs. Roy Eskew.

Presiding at the punch bowl was Mrs. Walter McLean. Mrs. Jones poured coffee and cakes were served by Mrs. Walker and Mrs. Eskew.

They took up a homestead on Sardine Creek Road, built their home here and on Christmas day in 1875 moved into their new home in which Mrs. Wait, daughter of the late William and Eva Newton, was living at the time of her death.
